It was divided into twelve equal parts, the first of which was called the first hour, the second, the second hour, and so on. Of course these hours had not precisely the same length that hours have with us, except when the sun rose at six in the morning and set at six in the evening. Still it is sufficiently accurate to say that the third hour ended at nine o'clock, the sixth at twelve, the ninth at three, and the eleventh at five. 15. Is thine eye evil because I am good? Are you envious and jealous because I am gracious and liberal? The Jews often alluded to envy under the figure of an evil eye. 16. So the last shall be first, and the first last. The text announced at the beginning of the parable is repeated at its...
